AN OPEN LETTER TO THE GUARDIAN:

Dear guardian,

Hope, you're doing well. The method of engaging an efficient tutor for the ward has been widely discussed in my site dbhattacharjee.com. So, it is needless to dwell on the issue.

As such, one has to bridge between the capacity to hire and the gap of expectations to be made up. Many prefer not to spend on the subject just because the ward is very good at it. Descending this order, I've found many guardians compromising quality considering just a feather touch being necessary for the ward as he/she is good at it. The better is the interest and performance the less is spending after it.

The subject as well as the marks scored in the early stages is a TRAP. One must know that the advanced level study will be a different ball game altogether.

Many come to me with the plea at such final stages to cause improvement. I humbly express my inability. I'm not a magician. And I can't plug the gap caused over a long period of negligence on THE PART OF THE COMPROMISING GUARDIAN in order to save a few bucks.

All said, I'll rest saying what I advise everyone. I and my colleagues (you may find them in my website) may not be the tutoring agents to your ward, but you may count on me as and when you feel like consulting. I'm always there to help anyone.

Only request is, please do not pick up the phone to call any time. Leave your message. One may, however, call when one has decided to admit the student based on the information in my website: <http://www.dbhattacharjee.com>
